A Message From The Police Commissioner

To: His Honor the Mayor, the City Council and the Residents of the City of Boston:

In many respects, Fiscal Year 1982-1983 was a year of notable gains by the Boston Police Department. Laid off police officers were recalled, new police officers and cadets were hired, much needed equipment was purchased and the crime rate dropped for the first time in ten years.

The year started with the recall of the last one hundred and sixty-three officers who had been laid off as a result of the budget deficits caused by the so-called Tregor rebates, school overspending and Proposition 2½. This improvement in the patrol force was augmented by the hiring of more than two hundred new police officers. Additional personnel were added to the department rolls by hiring sixty new cadets during August.

The promotion of Superintendent Francis J. Coleman to Superintendent-in-Chief was the first of a series of promotions which included nineteen Sergeants to the grade of Lieutenant and twenty-three police officers to the grade of Sergeant.

An increase in the department budget of almost 10 million dollars over the previous fiscal year made it possible to replace the department's obsolete motor vehicles and radios.

Shortly after the new year, plans were announced for a major reorganization of the Department that involved a fundamental shift in the basic patrol strategy. The plans attempted to maximize the visibility and effectiveness of the patrol force by rationalizing the use of existing resources and by shifting those resources to the areas of the greatest need.

The cornerstone of the new plan was the assignment of priorities to calls according to their urgency, and the allotment of personnel to the calls according to their priority. This new system necessitated the use of one officer units for non-emergency service calls and the assignment of two officers to every call for a crime in progress or for a life threatening situation.

As a result of the changes implemented under the Reorganization Plan, the Department more than doubled the number of beats that it fields on a daily basis. There were increases in the number of walking officers and motorcycle units working on a daily basis.

The effect of these changes had was almost instantaneous and unmistakable. Response time to all categories of calls dropped and by the end of the fiscal year had gone from a response time average of nine minutes to one of five minutes.

Perhaps most important of all, the crime rate began to drop for the first time in more than ten years. By the end of June, the Department had recorded almost eleven percent fewer crimes than it had for the corresponding previous year.

However the Department and the city are still faced with the fact that the local recidivism rate is more than seventy percent. The bulk of suspects that the department deals with have been processed before and can be classified as career criminals. Until the judiciary in this city realize the full extent of the problem and begin to act more aggressively, we can look for little change. Without a change in the recidivism rate, the department will have to continue to put its major effort into visibility and rapid response to act as a deterrent.

As we enter the new fiscal year, these trends appear to be intensifying. The crime rate continues to drop and the visibility of the Department's personnel is providing better service for all residents of the City of Boston. As the Reorganization Plan is further refined and a number of newly created units, such as the Auto Task Force and Burglary Task Force, begin their work in earnest, conditions can be expected to improve even more.

The Functions of the Boston Police Department

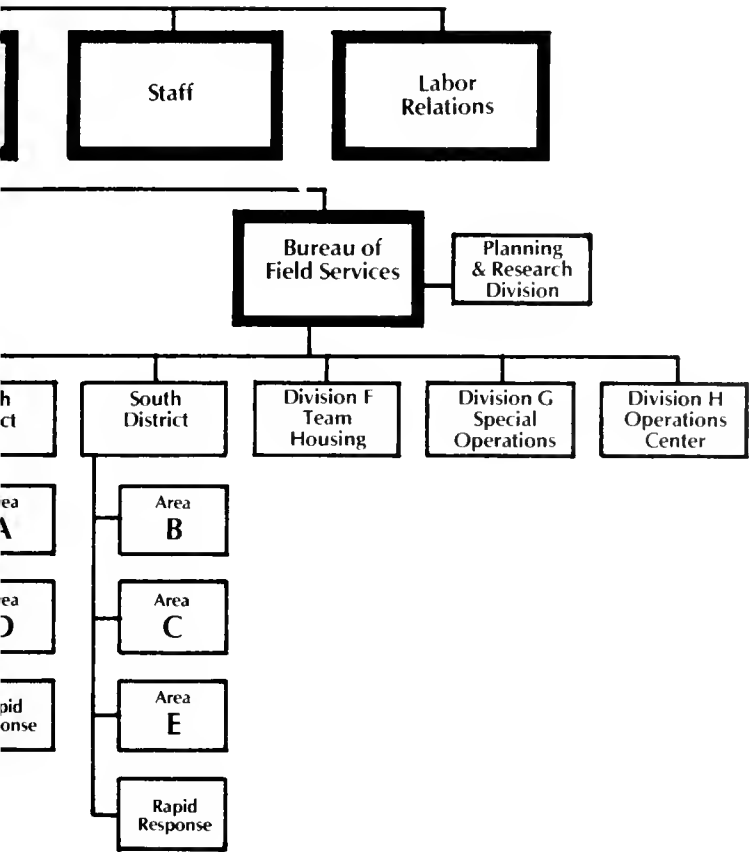

In March 1983, the Boston Police Department's organizational structure was changed to increase the Department's efficiency in meeting the changing needs of the Boston Community.

The new organizational structure (above) is organized into four major entities: the Office of the Commissioner, the Bureau of Administrative Services, the Bureau of Investigative Services, and the Bureau of Field Services.

The most evident changes of the Reorganization are the introduction of the one officer patrol cars, the two officer Rapid Response Units, and the greatly increased number of walking patrols in the city neighborhoods. As a result, there is a ninety-one percent increase in the number of patrols fielded by the Department.

Organization

Investigation
Unit

The Office of the Commissioner

The Executive Office is responsible for ensuring that all orders, instructions and policies of the Police Commissioner are implemented. This Office also evaluates police services and insures successful service delivery by various Department Bureaus.

The Administrative Section manages and coordinates the activities of the Police Commissioner's Office. This Section also reviews and develops programs to improve the quality of police service.

Informational Services is responsible for keeping members of the Department and the public informed of police activities through interdepartmental literature, the Speakers Bureau and the news media.

The Labor Relations Section represents the Police Commissioner at employee collective bargaining negotiations, labor conferences and grievance discussions. This Section also assists the Police Commissioner in developing labor relations policies and advises the Command Staff in instituting compliance procedures.

The Legal Affairs Office maintains liaison with other criminal justice and judicial offices and agencies in order to develop responses to legal problems that are germane to police departments. This Office also handles all legal matters that transact in the Department.

The Management and Budget Section budgets, audits and analyzes all Department programs. The Section's Data Processing Unit provides the Department with statistical reports and improved management systems. Management and Budget also records, processes and administers the Department payroll.

The Personnel Division develops standards and policies for all personnel action, including establishment of job specifications, recruitment, selection and promotion, transfers, discipline, leaves, retirement and the monitoring of personnel activities. This Division also supervises the Department Medical Program and conducts various personnel service activities.

The Special Investigations Unit provides the Commissioner with information and recommendations concerning the integrity of the Department. This Unit also investigates all criminal activity within the Department and monitors the Department's actions to fight corruption.

The Bureau of Administrative Services

The Bureau of Administrative Services provides support services to the Department's field activities. The Bureau is divided into the Services Division and the Training and Education Division.

The Services Division receives, records, and transmits to the City Treasurer all license fees collected by the Department. The Services Division also includes:

The Maintenance Section is responsible for the servicing of automobiles, buildings and communication equipment.

The Central Licensing Section regulates pawn shop operations, gun licensing and the City's Hackney Carriage Industry.

The Warrants Section serves as a clearinghouse for all warrants and summonses.

The Private Detail Section is responsible for the coordination of all off-duty police services rendered by members of the Department to private employers.

The Printing and Mailing Section prints and distributes all official Department documents necessary for the administration of the Department. This Section also is responsible for the handling and distribution of all U.S. and Department mail.

The Training and Education Division develops the Department Training Standards and administers all training and education programs.

The Bureau of Investigative Services

The Bureau of Investigative Services oversees the activity of the various units that comprise the Criminal Investigation Division to assure that the best possible investigatory practices and procedures are maintained on a continuous basis. The Bureau is also responsible for the maintenance of proper liaison with Federal, state, and local departments and agencies which are concerned with all aspects of the criminal investigation process.

In March, the Department was reorganized to include the old Bureau of Inspectional Services, giving the Bureau the responsibility of overseeing the evaluation of police performance and investigation of complaints made against Department personnel.

The Bureau of Investigative Services is divided into four divisions: the Criminal Investigation Division, the Intelligence Division, the Internal Affairs Division and the Staff Inspection Division.

The Criminal Investigation Division consists of the following:

The Vice Control Section is responsible for investigating prostitution, gaming, Liquor Law Violations, pornography and drug trafficking. This Unit investigates reported attempts by criminal organizations to gain control of licensed establishments and businesses.

The Drug Control Unit is responsible for city-wide enforcement of the Massachusetts Controlled Substance Act, development and implementation of drug-related public education programs and liaison with public and private organizations involved in the prevention and control of drug abuse.

The Homicide Unit investigates and prepares for the Grand Jury cases of homicide, suspicious deaths, serious assaults and battered child cases.

The General Investigative Unit is responsible for city-wide investigations of crime against persons and property. This Unit will supplement other criminal investigation units by conducting surveillances, investigation and related activities.

The Rape Investigation Unit coordinates and supervises all Department investigations concerning rape and sex crimes. This Unit also maintains a continuous Liaison with agencies involved in aiding these victims.

The Technical Services Section maintains the Crime Laboratory, the Identification and Photography Unit and the Ballistics Unit.

The Intelligence Division keeps the Police Commissioner informed of all the operational responses of the Department to planned criminal occurrences. The Organized Crime Section of this Division conducts investigations of organized criminal activity for the purpose of court prosecutions. This Section also maintains liaison with other criminal justice agencies and maintains its own confidential records and files.

The Internal Affairs Division reviews complaint investigations and investigates allegations of police misconduct. While responsible for Department discipline, the Internal Affairs Division also advises the Police Commissioner as to where additional training and/or changes may be needed in order to reduce complaint frequency.

The Staff Inspection Division is responsible for the evaluation of Department performance towards primary goals. This includes assessing rules and regulations, making recommendations for improvement, assisting in policy and training development, and performing periodic inspections of units and districts to assess staffing needs and their level of performance. This Division also supervises the operations and performance of private towing companies working with the Police Department.

The Bureau of Field Services

The Bureau of Field Services is responsible for the delivery of effective and efficient police services to the community.

On March 14, 1983, the new Reorganization and Deployment Plan was put into effect, restructuring the Bureau to include two districts, five areas, and four divisions.

The North and South Districts

The two District Commanders are responsible for the delivery of rapid response services in their respective districts.

Areas A-B-C-D-E

Each Area Commander is responsible for meeting the needs of the citizens by providing complete administrative and field supervision in the Area under his control. Area personnel are responsible for providing the best possible police services to their communities. These patrol forces also provide full cooperation with specialized units in seeking ways to improve the overall effectiveness of police operations within each area.

Each Area maintains a patrol force sufficient in size to provide continuous coverage and each maintains its own detective, administrative, supervisory and command personnel.

The Field Inspection Unit insures prompt and efficient police response to calls to the Department's emergency number "911" and the effectiveness of police enforcement activities.

The Planning and Research Division is responsible for researching operational and administrative problems in the Department and assisting units in developing effective responses to these problems. This Division works with other units in preparing long-range and contingency plans and is responsible for forms control, written directives, graphic arts, and the analysis of crime patterns and trends.

The Housing Patrol provides specialized coverage for the citizens in the various public housing developments throughout the city.

The Special Operations Division provides the Department with an array of highly specialized units that are utilized in situations where orthodox methods are insufficient. The Division consists of the following:

The Mobile Operations Patrol is the Department's motorcycle unit, which provides traffic enforcement, patrol and selective tactical operations.

The Canine Unit provides highly trained German Shepard dogs for patrol duty, drug searches, building searches and crowd control.

The Emergency Service Unit provides expertise in threat crisis situations that require special tools, lights, or equipment. These situations include bomb threats, hostage situations and snipers.

The Threat Management Teams are available for all life threat crisis situations.

The House of Detention is responsible for the care and custody of all women prisoners until the Court has disposed of their cases.

The Harbor Patrol Unit enforces the "Harbor Regulations" laws of the Commonwealth and the ordinances of the City of Boston in those areas of Boston Harbor that fall under the City's jurisdiction.

The Operations Division receives calls through the "911" Emergency Telephone System and assigns police resources to handle these calls. An Operations Center dispatches units in accordance with Department directives and plans developed by the Bureau of Field Services. The Operations Message Center contains communications facilities with LEAPS and NCIC computers as well as the Department Stolen Car Unit.

Police Officer's Prayer

Oh Almighty God,
Whose great power and eternal
Wisdom embraces the universe.
Watch over all Police and
Law enforcement officers.
Protect them from harm
In the performance of their duty
To stop crime, robberies,
Riots and violence.
We pray, help them keep our streets
And homes safe day and night.
We recommend them to your loving care
Because their duty is dangerous.
Grant them your unending strength and
Courage in their daily assignments.
Dear God, protect these brave men,
Grant them your almighty protection,
Unite them safely with their families
After duty has ended.

AMEN
